Re: Exporting of Wooden Giftware & Souvenir Products

The team at Aeon Giftware Ltd have taken every possible precaution to ensure that each of our products has been manufactured from safe materials suitable for export.

All native timbers used (NZ Kauri & NZ Rimu) are purchased from respected suppliers who only deal in recycled, recovered or windfall timbers. This timber is fillet stacked, air dried under cover for 6 – 12 months and then kiln dried.

Only premium quality material is selected and used for our giftware items. These are finished with either acrylic lacquer or a polywax sealer, to provide a durable finish for handling and to deter pests.

We have consulted with the Ministry of Agriculture & Fisheries who are the government agency responsible for policing phytosanitary requirements for imports and exports in New Zealand and they confirm that generally, if the timber is kiln dried and sealed no further treatment such as fumigation is necessary.

We believe all our products to be safe to the environment and of exportable quality.

Yours faithfully,

Mike Carlton
